THE RAILROADS OF MAINE.

REPORT OF THE RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

The annual report of the Railroad Commissioners, Hon. S. H. Blake, Col. A. W. Wilde and John F. Anderson, Esq., to the Governor and Council, upon subjects not heretofore discussed in their special reports, is chiefly filled with the following statement that the railroads of the State are in the better condition than ever before, and that with the improvements made the past year, especially in the most subject considered, which are here summarized as follows:

Grand Trunk.—Length in Maine, 93 miles. During the year the gauge has been changed and strikingly marked improvements made. Most of the track is in a superior condition, especially between Portland and Lewiston where steel rails have been laid on large ties, well ballasted and surfaced. The Messrs. Bridges are of iron and in every short time all will be.

Androscoggin Branch.—56 miles in length, connecting bridges and sidetracks, distance from Portland and Lewiston to the Grand Trunk Railway, 5 miles.

Maine Central.—The management of this very successful and prosperous road is in the hands of Superintendent Peabody, who is regarded by the Commissioners as well as high in office. Up to Sept. 30, 1874, there has been expended on account of the Maine extension including what part has been paid for the road, $4,160,811 74. The company has 60 coaches, 122 passenger cars and 1,466 freight cars. From Bucksport to Old Town is 16 miles, and from Old Town to Newport is 15 miles, making a total of 31 miles of track.

Portland & Rochester.—A marked improvement is reported in the condition of this road, both in the character of the road bed, the substantial character of the bridges, and the rolling stock. The completion of the Nashua & Rochester road, giving a through route to New York in addition to the work on the bridges, and the addition of new rolling stock, 12 200 miles and 12 new locomotives in the past year.

Portland Saco & Portsmouth.—This road is also reported in excellent condition. During the year 18 new freight cars have been added to the rolling stock, and the road bed and bridges have been improved and strengthened, so that the road is now in good condition for the business of the year.

Portland & Ogdensburg.—This road is also reported in excellent condition. During the year 18 new freight cars have been added to the rolling stock, and the road bed and bridges have been improved and strengthened, so that the road is now in good condition for the business of the year.

Androscoggin & Kennebec.—This road is also reported in excellent condition. During the year 18 new freight cars have been added to the rolling stock, and the road bed and bridges have been improved and strengthened, so that the road is now in good condition for the business of the year.

Penobscot & Kennebec.—This road is also reported in excellent condition. During the year 18 new freight cars have been added to the rolling stock, and the road bed and bridges have been improved and strengthened, so that the road is now in good condition for the business of the year.

Bangor & Piscataquis.—This road is also reported in excellent condition. During the year 18 new freight cars have been added to the rolling stock, and the road bed and bridges have been improved and strengthened, so that the road is now in good condition for the business of the year.

SOUTHERN RECITING

The facts have proved over and over again that the telegraphic reports from the South are generally if not universally colored in the interest of the opponents of the national administration; and in many instances so colored as to bear slight resemblance to the truth. This is readily explained by the fact that there are few localities in the late rebel States where a Republican could safely hold the position of a telegraphic reporter for the press of the country, of who would long be permitted by the White League to send forth news distasteful to members of the Order. The public had become pretty well aware of this state of affairs and reports from Southern points were received with a liberal discount, until of late two New York papers began to publish communications from "special correspondents" who were fully vouched for by their journals as thoroughly reliable persons sent South to ascertain and report the truth. The effect of these correspondents, more especially the N. Y. Times and Tribune, have afforded great comfort to the Democracy, by the manner in which they have described nearly all the casualty in the south to the white and black Republicans, while painting the White League as an innocent and lovely organization of high-toned gentlemen; making light of the shocking outrages daily perpetrated, and resulting in the very top of contradictory facts, upon the ardent patriotism and loyalty of those who have been engaged in murder or insurrection ever since they were forced to haul down the colors of the Confederacy. We have read these glowing reports with some interest, and have hitherto noted several instances showing the obvious efforts of "Southern hospitality" upon the tone and text of the correspondence. To a reader who has had the slightest acquaintance with the condition of affairs in the South at the close of and since the war, it becomes at once apparent that these newspaper men have circulated in an atmosphere not adapted to clear observation of the truth on all sides; and the ardor of the special pleas put forward for the most unjustifiable acts shows how thoroughly the writers have become biased by contact with only one phase of the situation.

One of the most notable instances of the effort of these correspondents to wrestle with disagreeable facts is afforded in a letter from the "Special" of the Times, dated at New Orleans January 16, giving an account of the treatment of General Sheridan by the "Chivalry." The writer commences by saying:

> A peculiarity of the people of New Orleans, which cannot fail to attract the attention of observing strangers, is the very great, I might indeed say the extraordinary, delight which they seem to take in cheering and vivifying some one public man. All their hatred of a party appears to concentrate itself upon a leader of that party, and upon the head of the unfortunate individual is showered they continue to pour out the vials of their wrath until time and changing events bring down new victims more prominently into notice.

But evidently remembering that this does not agree with the rose-colored accounts previously given of that community, and probably with a lively appreciation of good dinners enjoyed and to come, the writer hastens to say:

> The people of New Orleans never do anything by halves. They are hard workers, generous, warm-hearted to a fault, and very hospitable to guests who come properly recommended; and it is but justice to say that the mass of the people, although lacking him with a better breed, do not approve of the way he is treated by a few of their number.

If it is the case here we are told that "the entire white population of New Orleans join in hallooing him," and further, that:

> To the General Sheridan appears just now to be in reference to them, to declare that is evidently considered the duty of every good citizen. Everywhere—at street cars, bar-rooms, hotels, and even churches—I have heard men and women abusing him. This abuse is something very unjust, and all the charges brought against the General are made without sub-stantiation or thought.

We are told that the Lieutenant-General has been several times "hissed in effigy" by these loyal Louisianians; that "Shall," the shop windows in New Orleans are decorated with full-length pictures of him; that the new boys in the street mock his utterances, and that in the theatres pert actresses are gaining popularity and loud applause" by contemptuous allusions to the man who crushed treason out of the Shenandoah Valley and brought rebellion to its final halt at Burke ville.

We are informed that the enthusiastic loyalty and high-breeding of those people is manifested by greeting the General with "hisses and approval exclamations" on his appearance in the hall of the hotel, and that every day at the dinner table he is treated out of countenance by rude people who respect neither his honorable position nor the feelings of the ladies by whom he is accompanied. We are pleased to learn that "the General bears all this abuse and ridicule with commendable good nature, and the unique indifference." Gallant, glorious Phil Sheridan—God bless him—can afford to smile at the impotence of the boorish rebels of New Orleans.

We wish, however, to cite another striking example of special pleading and contradiction. This writer, without regard to his previous testimony as to the peculiarly loyal spirit of the community, goes on to say:

> The Captains of the League state that under no circumstances could they be induced to enter into a conflict with the United States troops. They profess to be loyal to the National Government, and I have good reason to believe that they are so.

But in the same breath the puzzling question is asked:

> Why, then, do they continue to bear arms against the will and, as has been claimed, against the laws of that Government?

The reader will echo "Why?" The "special" informs us that while "there are many respectable young gentlemen among the members," it is among the less numerous that a large number of worthless characters have gained admission." He also says that some business men who openly approve of the League are secretly opposed to it, as they "are obliged to subscribe large sums of money for its support;" and there is a decidedly loyal flavor about the remark that "if they refuse to do so they are looked upon and treated as traitors to their State." And after all the efforts at white-washing and justifying this League, and after all the indignant outcry against Sheridan for designating the ringleaders as "banditti," this special correspondent, who has struggled so earnestly to portray the attitude of the Louisiana Conservatives as altogether loyal, is reluctantly forced to the following conclusion:

> When all these things are considered, it cannot be doubted that the White League should cease to exist. Every non-partisan here who is interested in the welfare of Louisiana, who sympathizes with the taxpayers, and who desires to see a good and honest government secured to the State, would pardon what is called Gen. Sheridan's rashness and indiscretion if he succeeds in peacefully disbanding the White League.

OUR SENIOR SENATOR.

[From the Camden Herald.]

Mr. Hamlin is thus shown by a vote of two-thirds of the Legislature to be the unmistakable choice of this State for the responsible position which he has so long and so ably filled. We recently heard a prominent Democrat remark that one thing could be truthfully said of Mr. Hamlin: "He always answers the letters and attends to the business appointments without regard to their politics, and if they call on him, he asks them in their matters before Congress." The history of this State does not show another instance of so long continued and unqualified public confidence as that of Mr. Hamlin. Starting as a poor boy, brought up on a farm, compelled to be the architect of his own fortune, he has attained to the highest honors his native State has to confer, and has reached a position next to the highest in the gift of his country, with having no distinguished ancestors. Mr. Hamlin can say with pride of the ancients, "Let others boast of their descent, I will boast of my ascent." Such examples teach us that—

> Act well your part, there all the honor lies.
> Fame is no plant that grows on mortal soil.

[From the Lincoln County News.]

Without expressing any opinion of party fealty, we wish to say that Mr. Hamlin has earned the true friend of the soldier during the war of the rebellion. Every enquiry from friends concerning wounded or missing in Mulford regiments, received prompt and personal attention, and every soldier from the State can remember the frequent visits of Mr. Hamlin "at the front."

NEW SENATORS. The papers are just beginning to inquire about the new Senator from Michigan, who was elected by Bolster, of the Democrats with the opponents of Senator Chandler in the Legislature. From several accounts we gather that Judge Isaac P. Christiancy is now about 63 years of age, and has been a justice of the Supreme Court of Michigan since 1857, being twice re-elected. He became a Republican since the repeal of the Missouri compromise, but is conservative rather than partisan. A notice says: "As a lawyer he has no superior in the State in soundness and logical force. He is a man of strong character, of ample stores of useful information, and of practical capacity. Upon economic questions he favors a sound currency and a revenue tariff with incidental protection." If these credentials prove trustworthy we don't see why he may not prove an excellent Senator if not hampered by obligations to the Democratic party for support.

A telegram from Omaha says that Algernon Sidney Paddock, elected to succeed Tipton, as Senator from Nebraska, is a native of St. Lawrence county, New York, is about forty years of age, and of puritan ancestry. He is distinctly related to Gideon Welles, and General and Senator Sherman. Mr. Paddock has been a resident of Nebraska since 1856. Though a conservative Republican Mr. Paddock is in full sympathy with the Republican party, and will doubtless act with it in the future. His election was secured mainly as a compromise between the opponents of the strongest Republican candidate, Gen Thayer.

It was a very just remark that President Grant recently made to the deputation that waited upon him in reference to furnishing the Government aid for reclaiming the alluvial lands of the Mississippi, namely: That he was kindly disposed toward assisting in rebuilding the national prosperity of the South, but regretted that the people of the South could be disposed to lawlessness because they had been relieved by the bounty of the Government during the yellow fever plague, and thought the committee would receive less sympathy in con-sequence from Congress."

A WISE COUNSELLOR. The Kennebec Journal pays the following tribute to the abilities and discretion which our honored fellow-citizen, Judge Kent, brings to the discharge of the duties of President of the Constitutional Commission:

> The address of ex-Judge Kent at the opening of the session of the Constitutional Commission is much to be admired for the deference with which it treats our present constitution and the prudence of its suggestions in regard to changes. Long familiar with the merits and demerits of the present instrument, and master of every part of it, this able and experienced jurist appears upon his work with a circumspection and readiness to live true that commands for him deep respect among the people who are to be affected by the work in which he is engaged. We trust the Constitutional Commission will pursue their labors in the spirit of the President's opening address.

The Augusta correspondent of the Portland Press says:

> One cannot fail to notice the deference which the rest of the Commission accord to the President, Judge Kent. Full of years and honors, with a spotless character and an intellect that the weight of years has not bloodied, with the experience of two generations, of all the men in the State, he is the one to fill the position he occupies.

DEATH OF A MAINE MAN IN FRANCE. The cable brings intelligence of the death at Pau, France, of Alfred Johnson Monroe, a son of the late Dr. Monroe, of Belfast. Mr. Monroe has a graduate of Bowdoin college in the class of 1871, and removed at once to Baltimore, where he began the study of law. Although noted in college for his ruggedness of health and exceptionally fine physique his health failed him soon after graduation, and he died of consumption at Pau, whither he had gone with his mother and sister in the hope of regaining strength. Mr. Monroe was a young man of fine abilities and of a generous nature. He will be sincerely mourned by a large circle of friends in Maine.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Gen. James A. Hall has been renominated for Collector of Customs at Waldoboro'.

Some of the "Independent" journals are reminding us that the feets in Louisiana remain the same, notwithstanding the President's message. Exactly; Wiltz didn't succeed in electing himself Speaker by a minority vote. We don't believe he will.—Lewiston Sentinel.

An exchange says Cockerell, the new U. S. Senator from Missouri in place of Schurz, was formerly a guerilla chief, delivering lofe off preaching to take command of a band of border ruffians. Of course, he is a good Democrat.

Boyd Winchester, Democratic ex-member from Kentucky, swore before the Ways and Means Committee that he won $400, not $1,600 at card playing with Congressmen, and deposited it with the Sergeant-at-Arms. He wanted the country to understand that he was reformed and never received any Pacific Mail money.

In response to a note from Judge Hoar, asking Congressman Foster if a statement in the Washington correspondence of the New York Tribune, that "the leader of those who by arguments, by coaxing, and almost by threatening, moved heaven and earth to make Mr. Foster violate his conscientious convictions of justice and duty, was George F. Hoar of Massachusetts," were true, Mr. Foster replies that it is an entire mistake from beginning to end."

OBITUARY.

SAMUEL S. SMITH.

We regret to announce the decease of our fellow-citizen Samuel Stevens Smith, which occurred last Saturday night. Mr. Smith was born in Hallowell Feb. 24th, 1809. At the age of fourteen years he was apprenticed to Messrs. Goodale, Glazier & Co., printers and publishers at Hallowell—afterwards Glazier, Masters & Smith. As an apprentice he worked on the old Hallowell Gazette and Robinson's Almanac. After the custom of the times, he served seven years at the trade, in constant and unremitting labor, and received a suit of clothes and $50 upon the completion of his apprenticeship.

During his long and diligent service he saved up $200 by extra work, often protracted till midnight, after his allotted work was finished. With this money and additions to it from the savings of his journeyman's wages in Boston, Newburyport, Augusta and other places for about three years, he came to this city in 1833, and opened a small printing-office on Main street, in which, for several years he kept the old Social Library, which required considerable of his attention. From this office he removed to one on West Market Square, and about thirteen years ago to Dow's Block.

Mr. Smith was the first to set up a power printing-press in this section of the State. He was the publisher of the Bangor Journal—a literary quarto, published for one year, in 1837, edited by Rev. Thomas Curtis.

He was a practical printer for fifty-two years, and for forty-two years carried on the business in this city, his active participation in which has been somewhat interrupted for several years past by a serious accident and consequent impaired health. He was clerk of the First Parish Society for many years, and for three years Librarian of the Mercantile Library. He was also a prominent member of Penobscot Lodge, I. O. O. F., having been connected with the fraternity since the establishment of the Order in this State.

He was a most patient sufferer and always striving to lighten the burdens of others. Towards the last he was ready and anxious to go.

Mr. Smith's early habit of industry and diligence adhered to him tenaciously and made his life active and busy, and in dropping out of the ranks he will be kindly remembered by his fellow-craftsmen and his fellow-citizens among whom he so long lived. The deceased leaves a widow and two children. The funeral will take place Wednesday, as announced elsewhere.

EDMUND R. ROLLINS.

We have also to make the sad announcement of the death on Saturday noon, 23d inst., after a severe illness of three weeks, of Edmund H. Rollins, Esq., senior partner of the firm of E. H. & H. Rollins, of this city. The deceased in company with his brother has been engaged for some years in an extensive planing and moulding business, the large and well appointed manufactory of the firm situated in Brewer having been remodelled the subject of a detailed notice in our columns a few months since. Although quiet and reserved in manner, Mr. Rollins was a man of much energy and enterprise in his business, to which he devoted great industry, and maintained a high character for integrity. He was about 39½ years old at the time of his death, and having been a widower for many years, leaves two orphan sons, young men who have been associated with him in business, upon whom, as upon his brother and partner, this sudden bereavement falls with peculiar force. The deceased was much esteemed by those who knew him best, and in his death your city has lost an active and enterprising citizen. The funeral will take place from the Universalist church on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

IN PERFECT PEACE.

BY REBECCA R. PINCK.

Who conflicts that doth never cease
Our life's eventful sea
Thou'lt find O Lord, keep him in perfect peace
Who's mind is stayed on Thee

In perfect peace that knoweth no more,—
Which keeps a river flows
With thy one quiet on the weary breast
Of this world's restless woes

In vain the waves may dash with tumultuous power
In vain oft-times assail
If trusting to our safety in the hour
We flee unto Thee for shelter

In all the storms that may prove a shadowed path
Where bi tressed life must
Be fraught of earthly power—its very grandeur crush—
Against us shall prevail

O what of temptation bleak may then
All on us wreck to ruin
To Thee we flee for safety
Thou'lt find a shelter there
